Project Shortcomings

Over the course of developing this project, certain features and details had to be set aside to meet expectations of functionality. One of if not the feature that had to be cut was for the user to be able to create custom profiles, whose configurations were already prepared once completed. This project started from a viewpoint of lowering barriers to use, so for something that exemplifies what we are aiming for is a mis-step on our part.

Our other hope for what we have done is to see if it works in larger environments, or at the very least on multiple different servers. With the resources we had, we were unable to scale it up, limiting the possible testing we could do. If possible, testing in more environments would be very beneficial in determining what needs to be adjusted should the scope expand.

Outside of features and scalability, updating the UI would go a long way. Adding helpful tooltips supportive links, or in-app guides would help in making BingerVPN as accessible as possible.
