Alex Hued

- How many hours did I work since the last meeting?
 - 3 hours
- What was done since the last scrum meeting?
 - I focused on polishing and refining the existing project components, ensuring everything functions smoothly and meets the final delivery standards.
- What is planned to be done until the next scrum meeting?
 - I plan to finalize remaining touch-ups, improve any minor issues, and ensure the project is fully prepared for submission.
- What are the hurdles?
 - There are no major hurdles at this stage — the remaining work involves minor refinements and confirming that all components align with the final project requirements.

Nicholas Delgado

- How many hours did I work since the last meeting?
 - 3 hours
- What was done since the last scrum meeting?
 - I continued working on backend development tasks and made progress toward finalizing the remaining components.
- What is planned to be done until the next scrum meeting?
 - I will continue with the same backend development work, focusing on completing and polishing the remaining features.
- What are the hurdles?
 - The main hurdle has been coordinating meeting times and scheduling, as class schedules and other commitments make it challenging to align availability.

Amanda Bustinza

- How many hours did I work since the last meeting?
 - 3 hours
- What was done since the last scrum meeting?
 - I continued refining the list of features, focusing on reducing it to only the essential items required for core functionality.
- What is planned to be done until the next scrum meeting?
 - During this sprint, I will continue streamlining the learning-related features to prevent feature creep. After organizing the feature list last week, my focus this week is to prioritize the items and further narrow them down.
- What are the hurdles?
 - The primary hurdle remains scheduling meeting times.
