The following user stories were completed:

- As a job seeker, I want to paste a job description into the website and get a scam detection result so that I can avoid suspicious job postings.
- As a developer, I want to design a simple UI layout with a text box, a button, and a result area so that users can interact with the tool.

The following user stories are in progress but were not yet completed:

- As a user, I want the tool to display a message when no suspicious content is detected so that I know the job is likely safe.
- As a developer, I want to write unit tests for the keyword detection logic so that we can ensure it works correctly.
- As a user, I want an "About" section on the site so that I can understand the purpose of the tool.
- As a developer, I want a simple CSS style for the website so that the layout is readable and user-friendly.
- As a user, I want to see a loading indicator while the analysis is running so that I know the tool is working.
- As a user, I want to be able to block the offending poster from my feed so I am less likely to encounter that poster again.

The team aligned on priorities and expectations and will carry over the current work into the next sprint for further development and refinement.
